Robert Randolph Clemons— second installment —

He had decided to move tomorrow into cheap but cleaner and better quarters he could do it for old Jim left a hundred and fifty dollars. He had been a miser and lived in this old hovel to scrape a penny or a piece of silver often refusing to eat, saying, "It costs money."

It was June Fred was planning to work hard this month for he was going to leave the city the first of August.

He had met a few days before a boy from a small town quite a ways from the city, the boy was about to cross the street and Fred caught hold of his arm "Not that way sir," "go down to the crossing" The boy saw a auto dash by just in front of him and said, "Gess I will." Fred who was just about to return home walked along with his new found friend. Fred told of how his Grandfather (old Jim) had ben run down and they soon reached the station for which James Holme Fred's new friend was looking for. It was not yet time for James to leave and Fred was in no hurry so they sat down. To Be
